ABSTRACT

Access to content may be enabled by receiving an instruction indicating a client request to access content, accessing a list of content sources capable of rendering the content for which access is requested by the client, determining a performance metric for at least two

5   of the content sources, and selecting among the content sources based on the performance metric to identify a content source to be accessed by the client.

40184268.doc